This month’s best advisement practice is…

An advisor needs to focus on building self-confidence for at-risk students in the academic setting. (Heisserer, 2002)

Summer 2013 ushered in new courses for Supplemental Instruction. The faculty worked over the summer to develop SI activities, to plan ways to motivate and encourage students to attend SI sessions, and to use SI learning strategies in their courses.

The Student Success Center is offering SI in General Biology I, World Civilization I, and General Psychology on both campuses this semester. SI leaders were trained before the semester starts in managing, planning SI Sessions and working with students in specific learning strategies.

Already this semester we have seen great attendance, and anticipate attendance to increase now that the first tests have been taken.

If you are interested in having SI in your classes next academic year or have any questions about SI, feel free to contact the Learning Specialist on your campus.

Food for Thought

Twenty years from now you will be more disappointed by the things that you didn’t do than by the ones you did do, so throw off the bowlines, sail away from safe harbor, catch the trade winds in your sails. Explore, Dream, Discover. –Mark Twain
